

STAND UP FOR SRHR

Imagine a world where every young woman, adolescent girl, and community member has the knowledge, access, and freedom to make informed choices about their sexual and reproductive health and rights (SRHR).

This is the vision behind Stand Up for Sexual and Reproductive Health and Rights (Stand Up)—a 6.5-year initiative dedicated to empowering individuals especially adolescent girls and young women (AGYW) in select districts of Mozambique and Uganda.

Through this initiative, healthcare providers and facilities are equipped with the skills and resources they need to offer comprehensive sexual and reproductive health (SRH) services. IPPF Africa Region and its Member Associations—Reproductive Health Uganda (RHU) and Associação Moçambicana para o Desenvolvimento da Família (AMODEFA) in Mozambique—are working to ensure that adolescent girls and young women (ages 10-29), women over 30, and even men and boys can access the care and information they deserve.

“ By strengthening healthcare systems and improving SRH education, Stand Up is not just delivering services—it’s creating lasting change for healthier, more informed communities.

Our Approach

At the heart of Stand Up is the Cluster Model—a strategic approach designed to strengthen local health systems and ensure that sexual and reproductive health (SRH) services are high-quality, comprehensive, and environmentally sustainable.

This model works by expanding access through multiple channels, including both public and private health facilities, mobile outreach programs targeting communities with the greatest need, and trained community health workers (CHWs) who bring essential care closer to people's doorsteps. By reaching every corner of the cluster's catchment areas, this approach ensures that no one is left behind when it comes to vital SRH services.

Our Challenges

Despite its progress, Stand Up faces significant challenges in both Mozambique and Uganda, which threaten access to sexual and reproductive health and rights (SRHR) services.

In Mozambique, ongoing conflict in Cabo Delgado has forced many people to flee their homes, seeking safety in neighboring districts like Nampula—one of the project's key implementation areas. This displacement puts additional pressure on local healthcare services, making it harder for people, especially women and young girls, to access the care they need.

In Uganda, the passage of the Anti-Homosexuality Act in 2023 has intensified discrimination against sexual and gender minorities. By denying LGBTQ+ individuals their fundamental rights and dignity, such laws create serious barriers to accessing SRHR services, putting their health and well-being at risk.

“Despite these challenges, Stand Up remains committed to ensuring that everyone—regardless of their circumstances—can exercise their right to quality SRHR services.”
